

Making A Powerful First Impression

It takes only seconds for someone to form an opinion of you when we meet them for the first time. What they initially see becomes their own personal version of the truth, and it can be hard to change the first impression. You are judged by your ability to put others at ease, and your professional image can be enhanced or harmed by a few simple gestures. This session will show you a few ways to use those primary moments to your advantage and create a favorable first impression.
